

All-Russia Opinion Poll: Attitudes of Russians towards WMD Proliferation and Terrorism

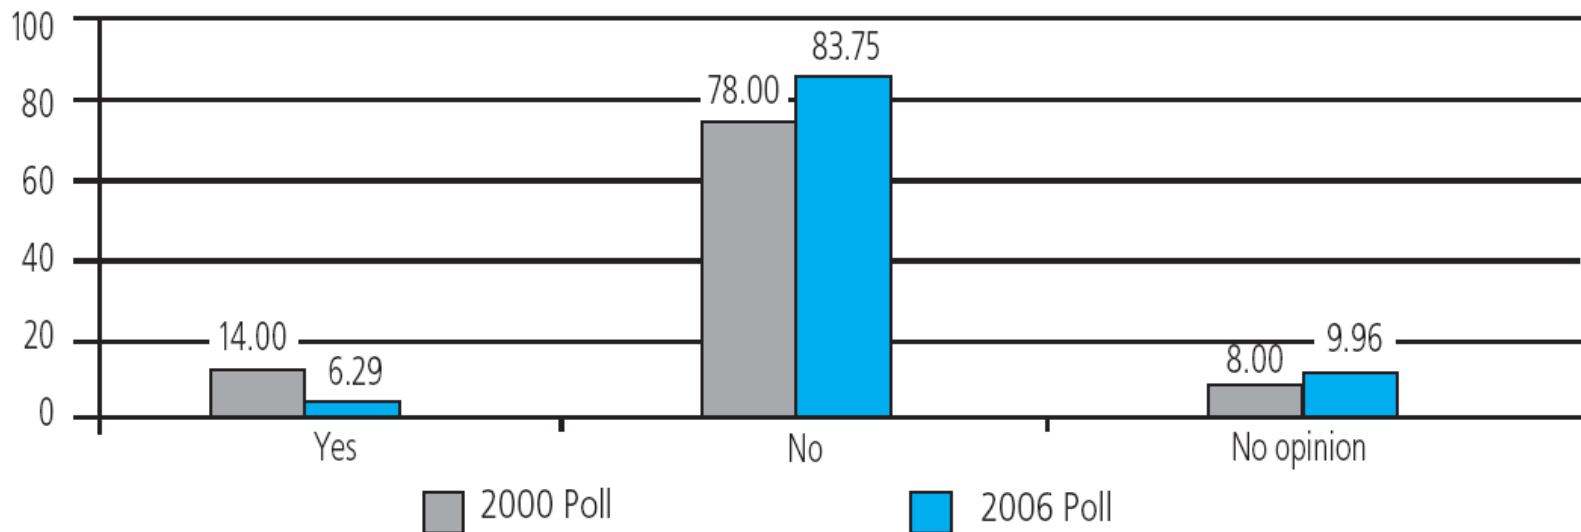

- Continues the tradition of 2000 All-Russia Poll
- Conducted on 21-26 January 2006
- Conducted in 46 Russian regions
- Representative survey among 1600 respondents
- Error margin 3.4%

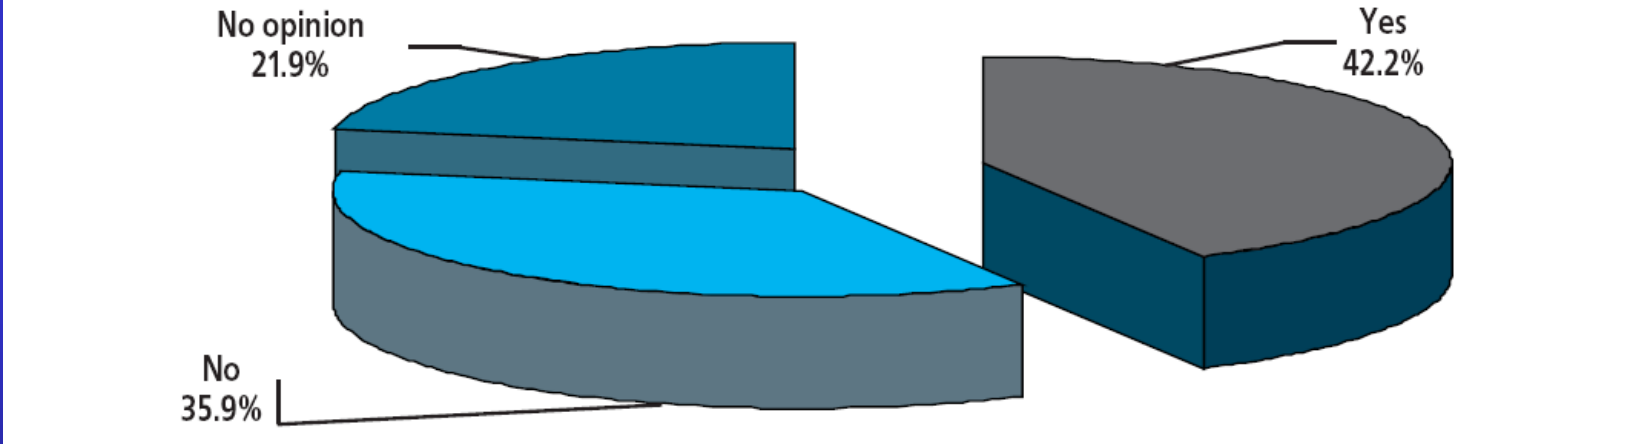

Will the World Become More Stable if the Number of Nuclear Weapon States Increases?

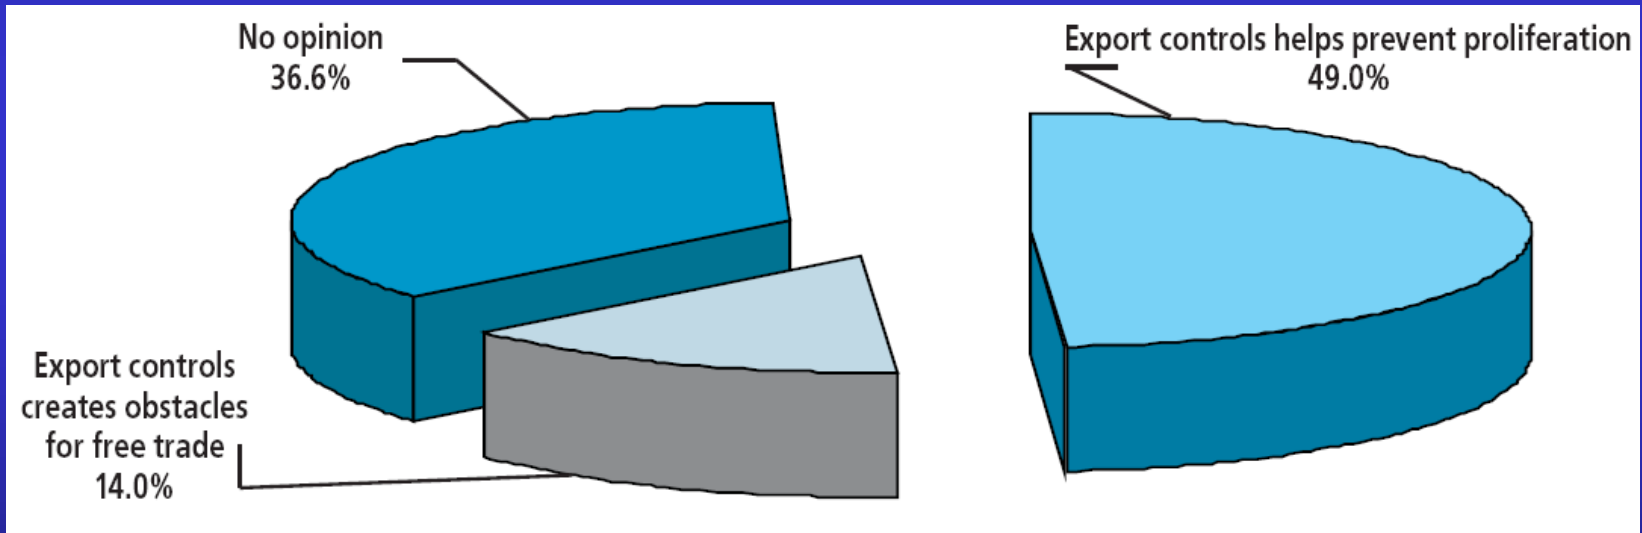

Should Russia Transfer Its Nuclear Technologies and Weapons to Other Countries?

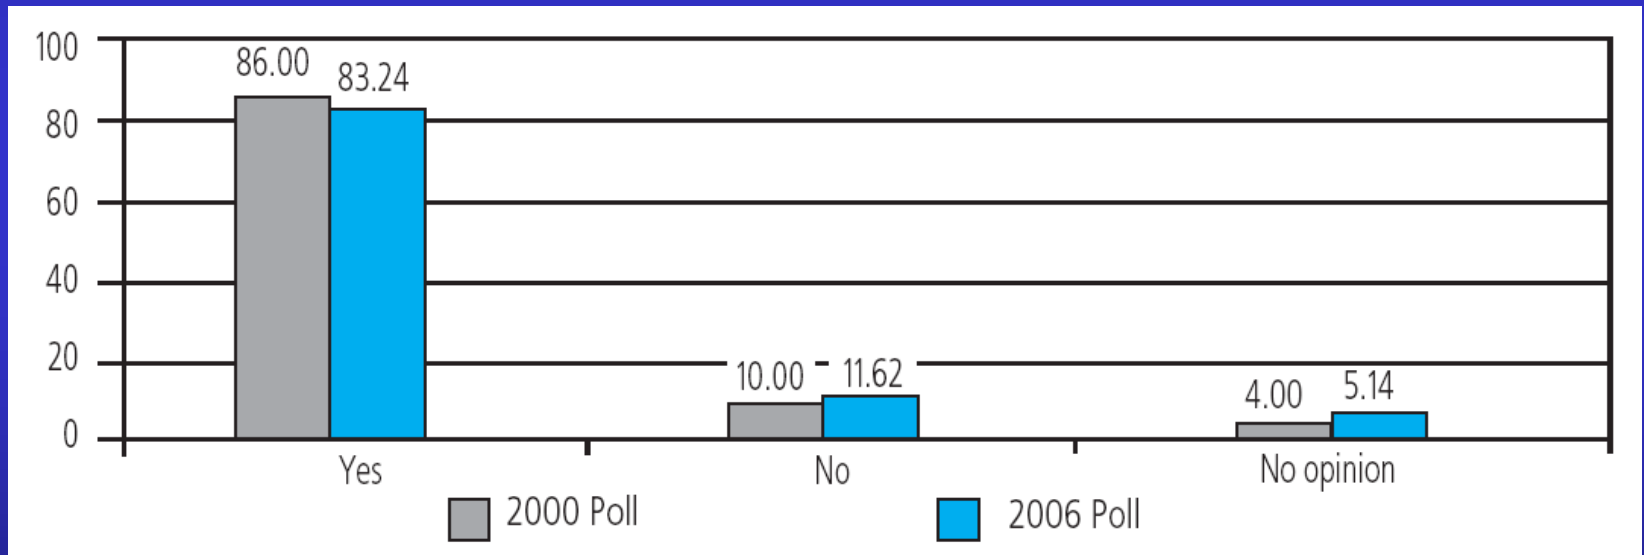

If Iran Acquires Nuclear Weapons, Will This Comprise a Threat to the National Interests of Russia?

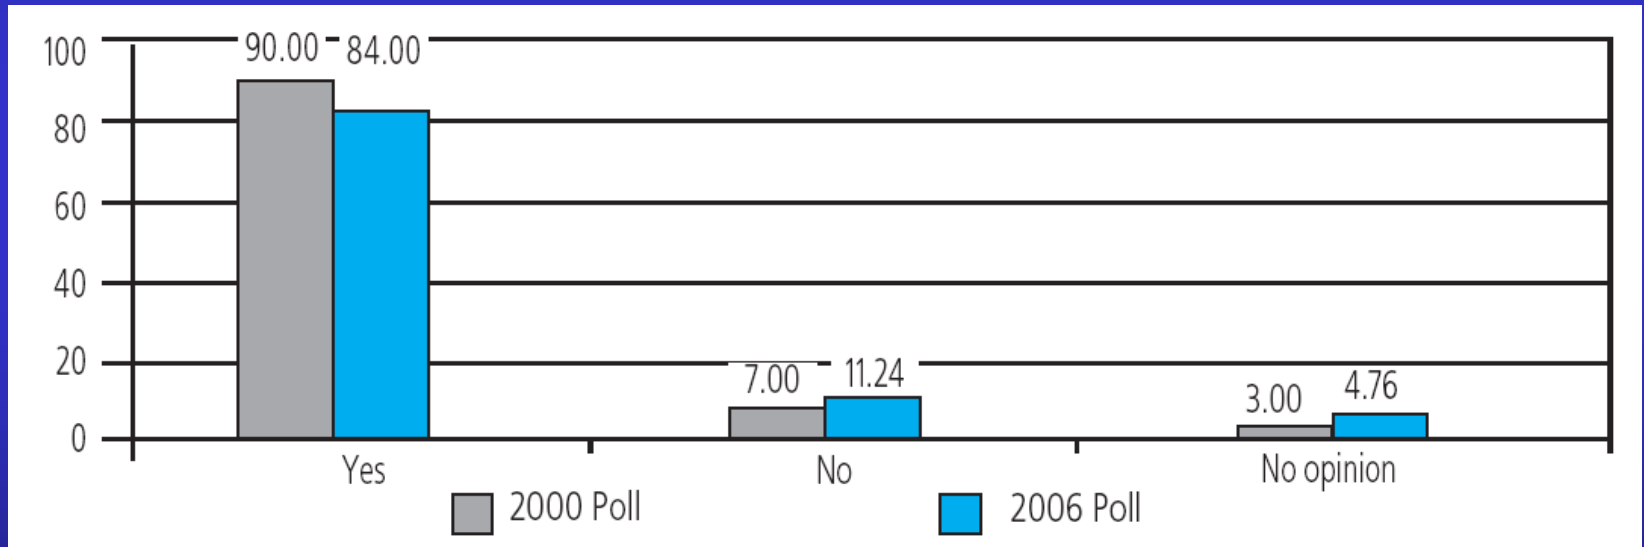

Below Are Judgments on the Role of Export Controls over Dual-Use Technologies (for Both Civil and Military Uses). Which Most Closely Matches Your Opinion?

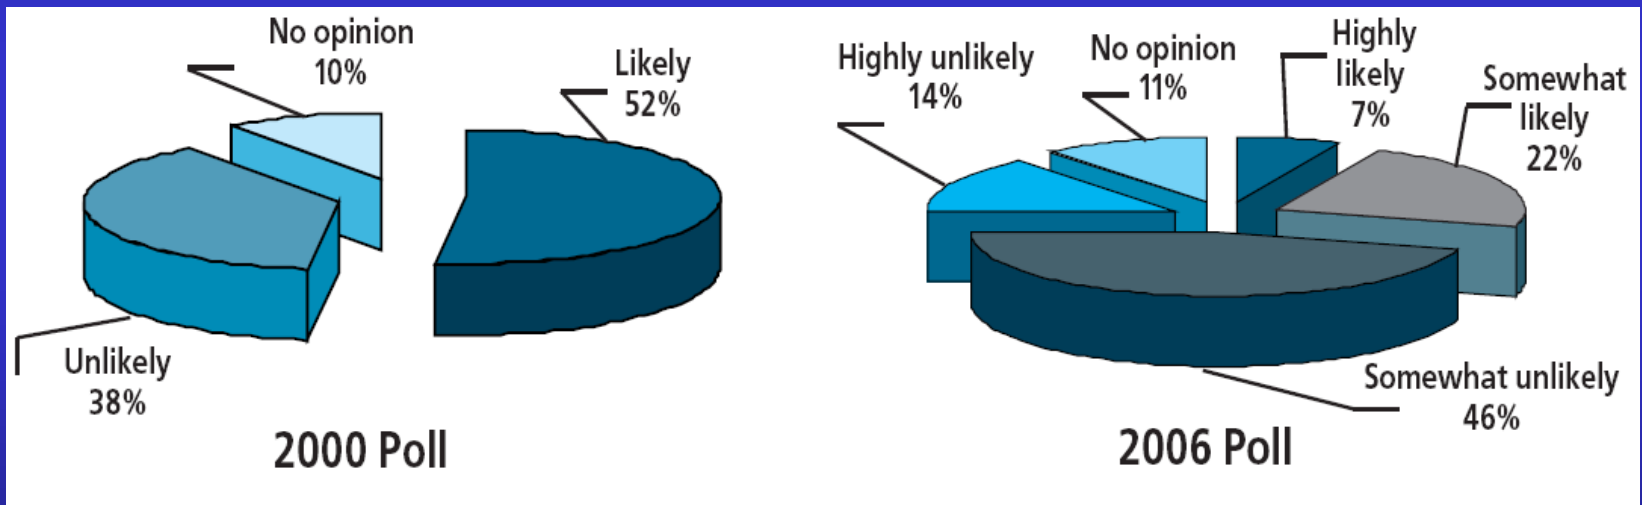

Are You Afraid That if Weapons of Mass Destruction Fall into Terrorist Hands They May Use Them Against Our Country?

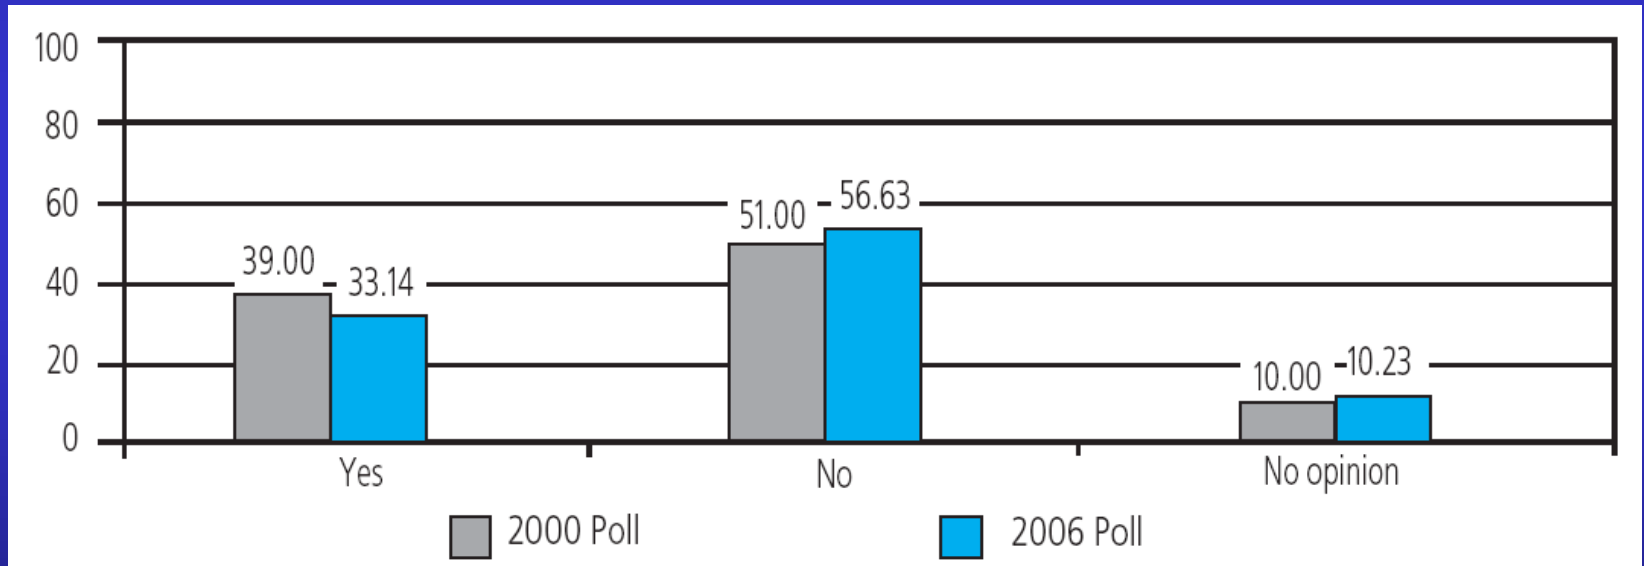

Are You Concerned That Russian Nuclear Facilities (Power Plants, Nuclear Weapon Storage Facilities, etc.) May Become the Target of Sabotage by Terrorists?

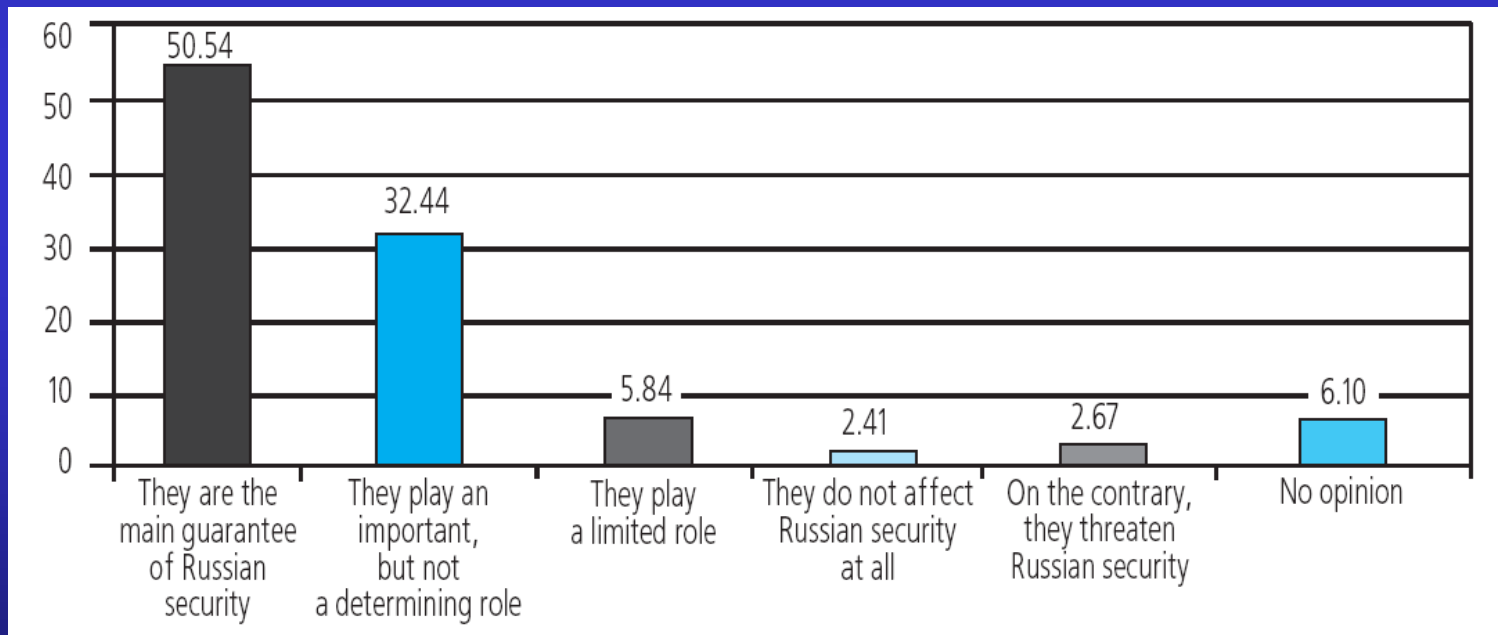

How Likely Do You Believe Foreign States Are to Use Nuclear Weapons in an Attack on Russia?

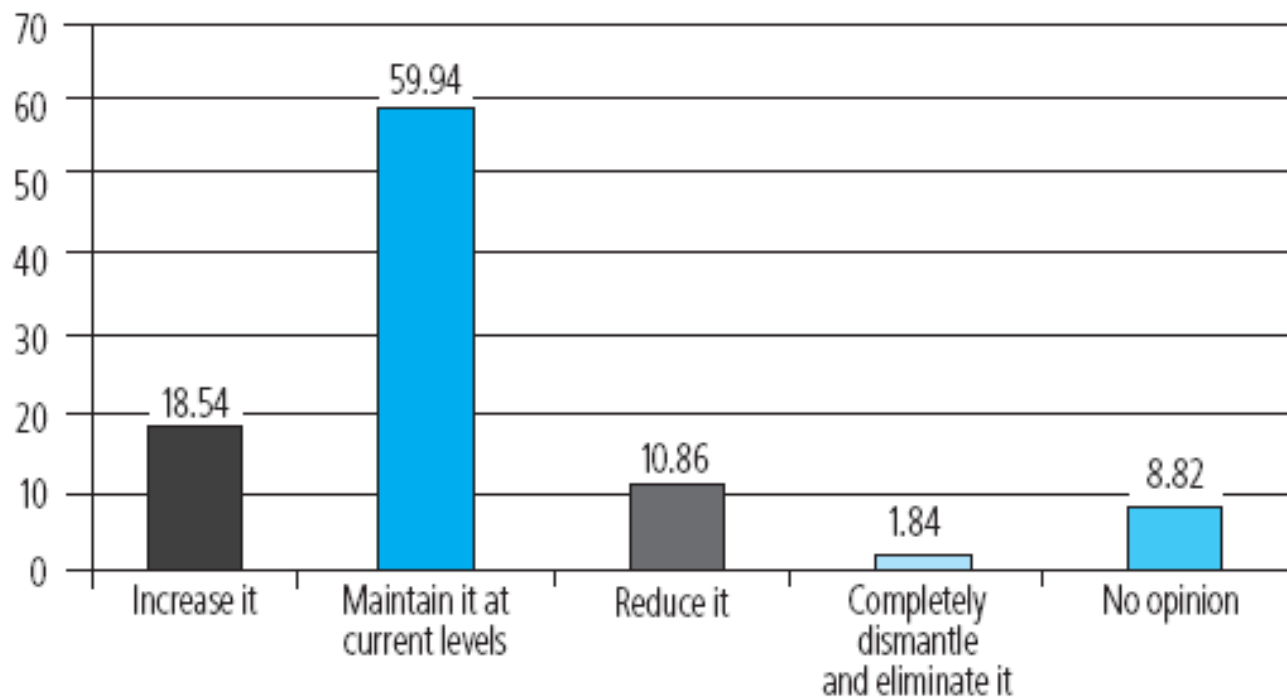

Should Russian Nuclear Weapons be Permanently Targeted at Particular States?

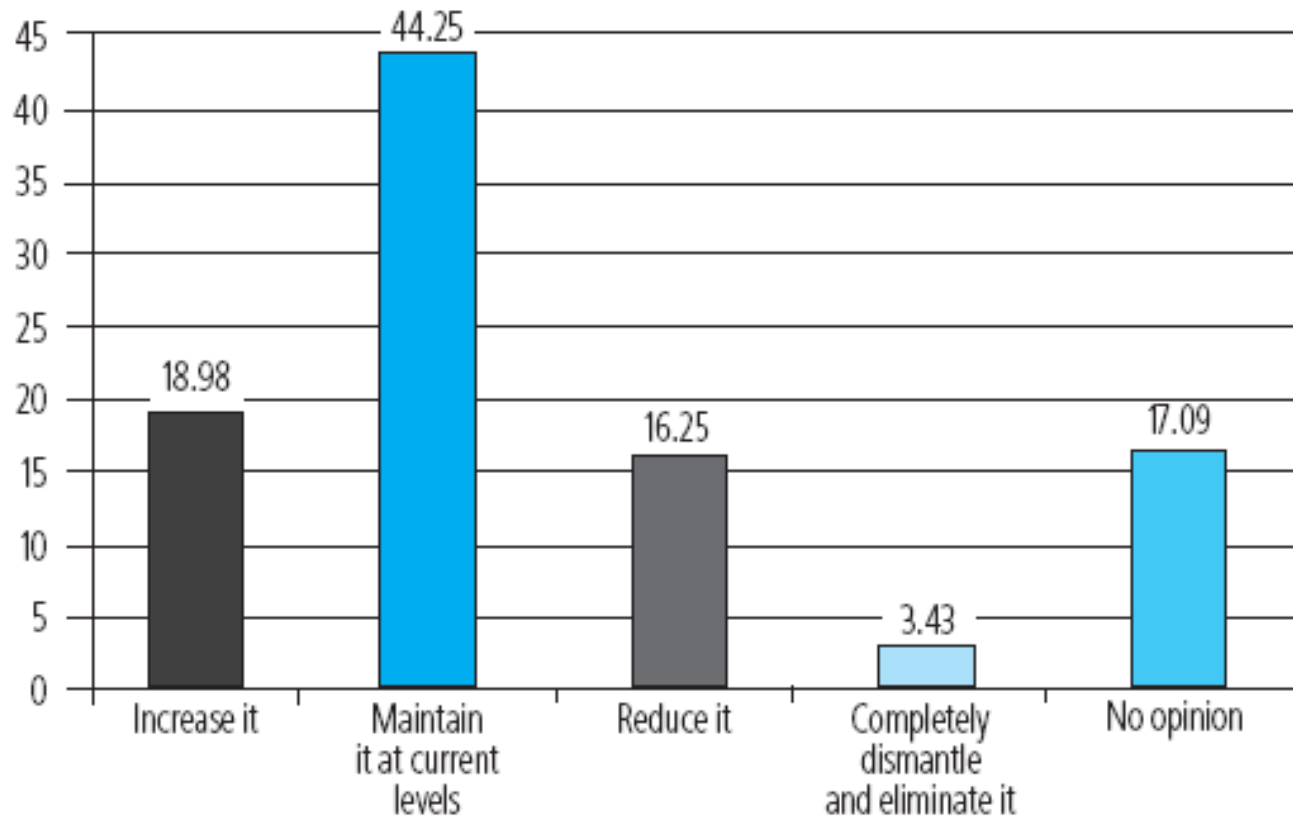

What Role, in Your Opinion, Does Russia's Possession of Nuclear Weapons Play in Providing for National Security?

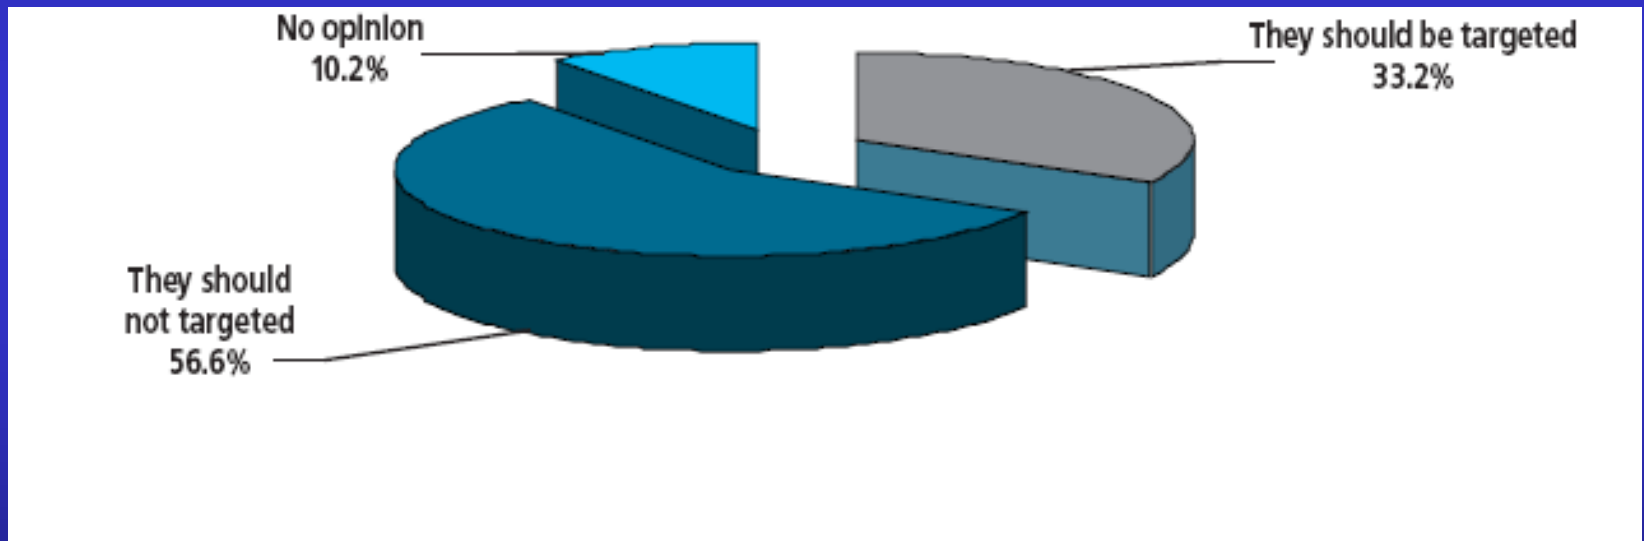

What, in Your Opinion, Should Russia Do with Its Nuclear Arsenal in the Next 3–5 Years?

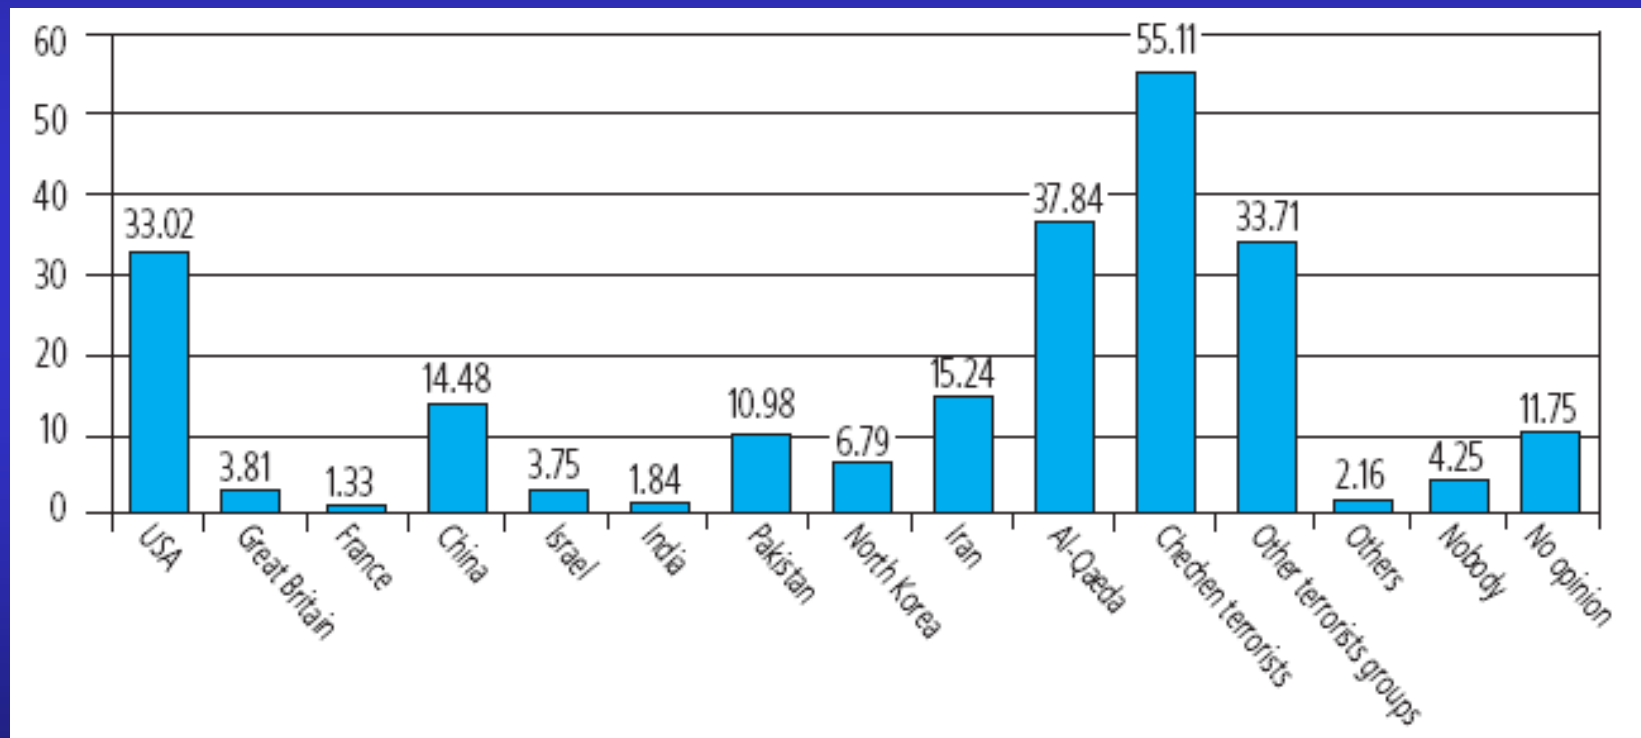

How Should Russia Handle its Nuclear Arsenal in the Long Term – Over the Next 25–30 Years?

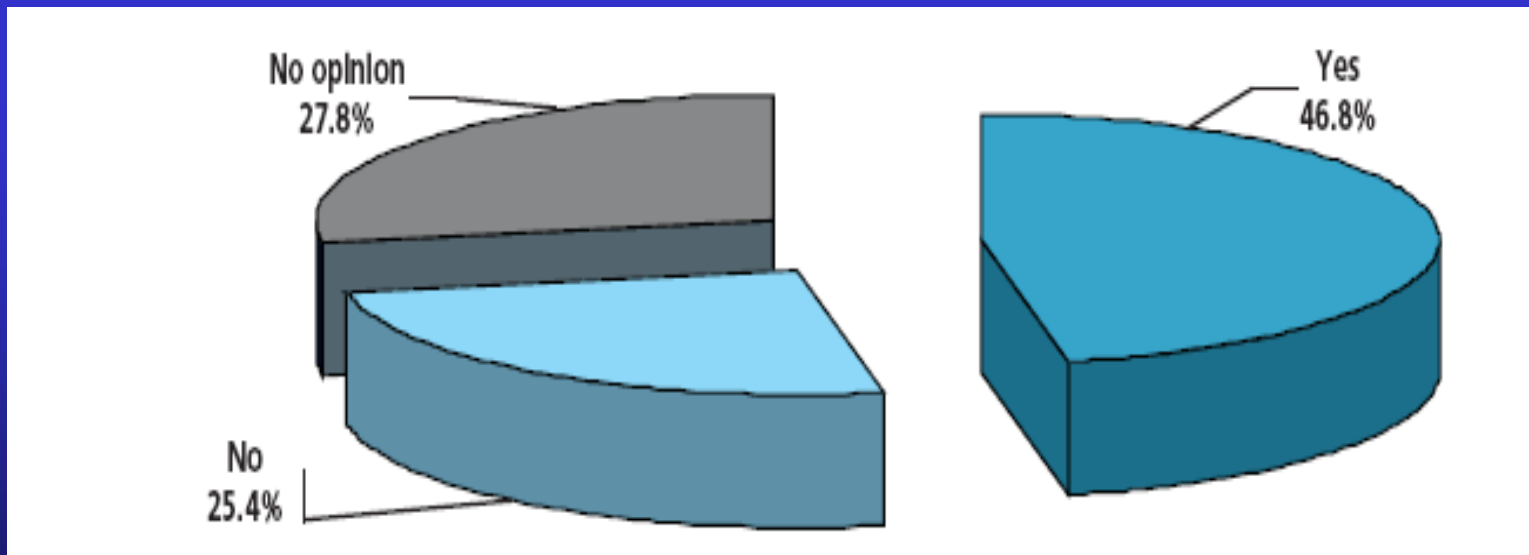

Should Russian Nuclear Weapons Be Targeted at Particular States in Peacetime or Not?

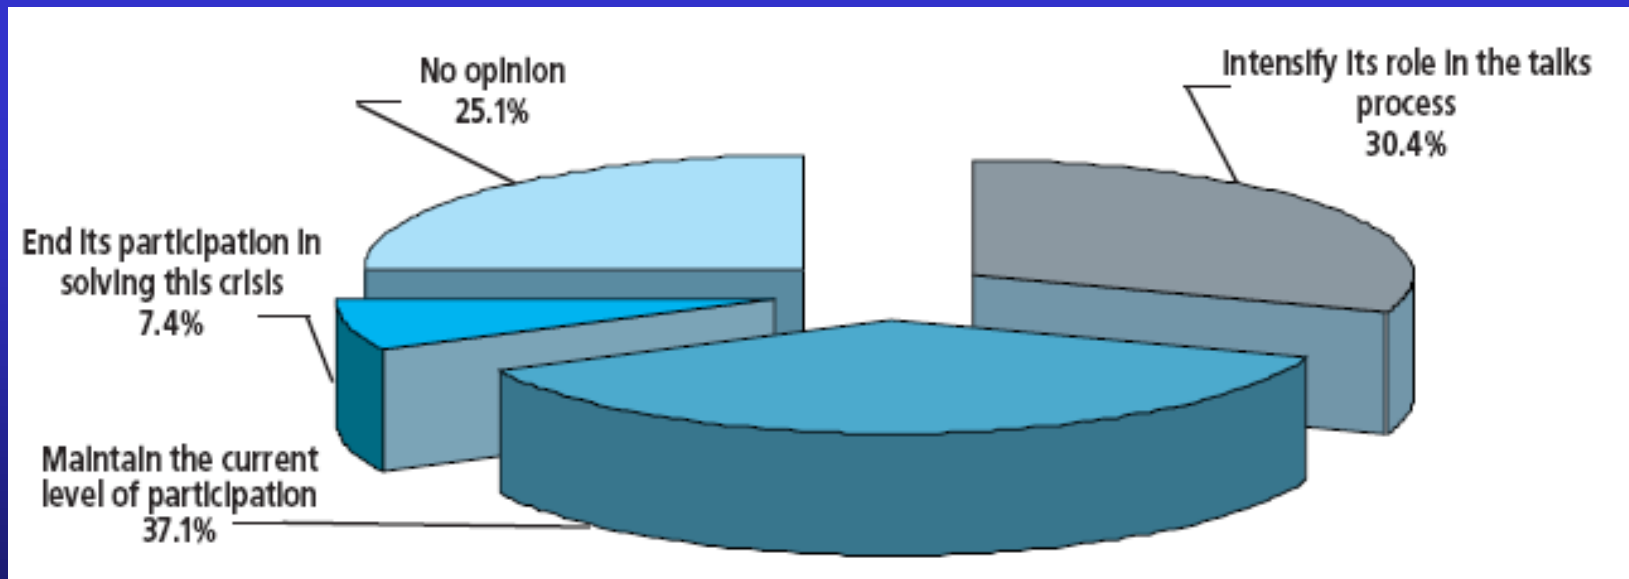

Which of the Following States and Non-State Actors, in Your Opinion, Poses a Threat to Russia, Involving the use of WMD?

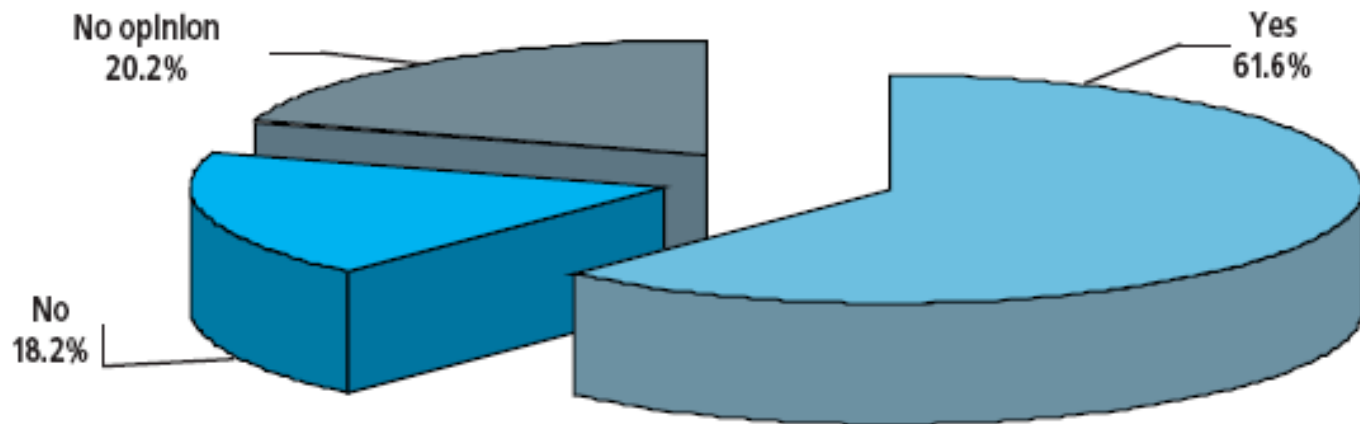

The International Community, Including the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), Has Certain Doubts about whether Iran is Using Nuclear Technologies for Exclusively Peaceful Purposes. In Such Conditions, Should Russia Continue to Cooperate with Iran to Develop Peaceful Nuclear Power (Construct Nuclear Power Plants, Train Specialists, etc.)?

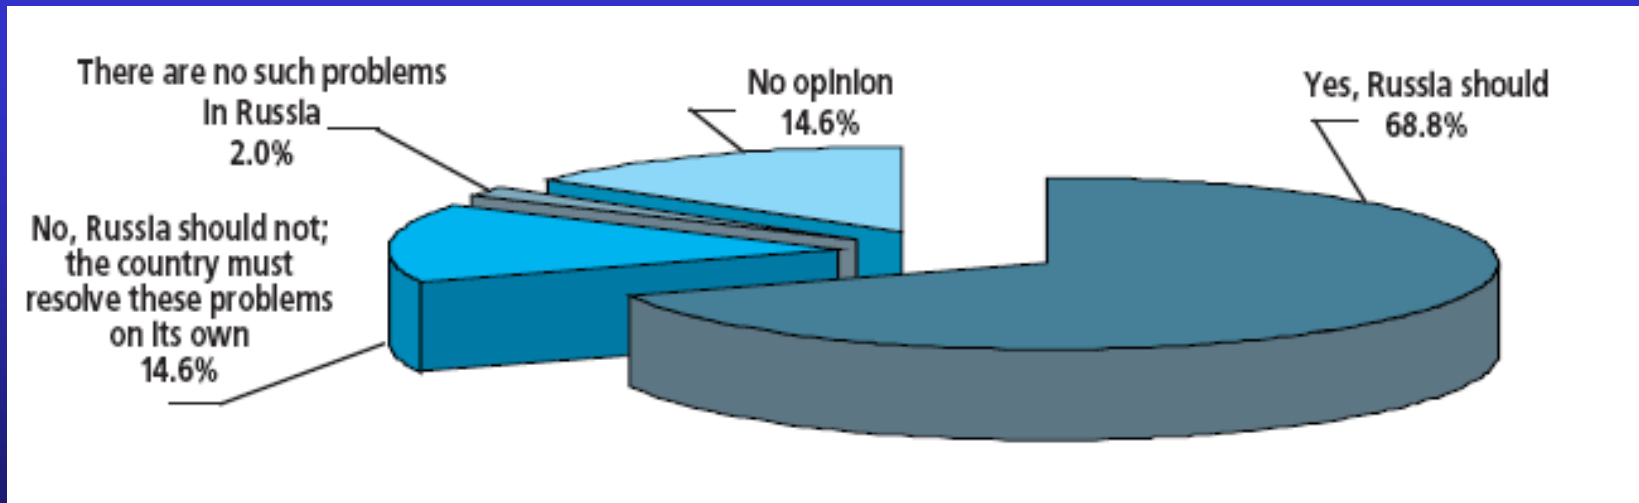

Russia Participates in the Six-Party Talks (the Other Parties are North Korea, South Korea, China, the United States, and Japan) to Solve the Nuclear Crisis on the Korean Peninsula. Considering the Absence of Significant Progress in the Talks, How Should Russia Act Now?

Should Russia Coordinate Its Policy in the Area of Nonproliferation of Weapons of Mass Destruction with the G8 Countries?

Should Russia Participate More Actively in the Process of International Cooperation with the G8 Countries in the Field of Biosafety and Biosecurity (Prevention of Terrorist Acts Using Biological Weapons, the Fight against Infectious Diseases), or Should Russia Resolve These Problems on Its Own?

Should Russia Seek Assistance (Financial or Technical) from G8 Countries to Dispose of Excess Russian Arms (Nuclear Submarines, Chemical Weapons, Weapons-Grade Nuclear Materials, etc.)?

