Centre russe d'études politiques

Was founded in Switzerland in August 2006. Its headquarters is located in the canton of Geneva. It is a non-governmental, non-profit organization incorporated in a form of Association, with members from Russia, Switzerland, United States, United Kingdom, France and other countries. PIR Center, one of the leading Russian think tanks on global security which has been working in this area for nearly 25 years, and Trialogue Club International, both based in Moscow, are the Centre's key partners in Russia.

The main objective of the Centre is to strengthen international peace through re-energizing a dialogue on international security issues between Europe and Russia, with a special focus on Swiss-Russian dialogue.

The priorities of Centre russe d'études politiques include:

- Dialogue on European Security Architecture Between Europe and Russia
- Switzerland and Russia: Exchanging Views and Assessments on European Global Security
- Ways towards Nuclear Arms Control and Nuclear Disarmament
- Cyber Security on Nuclear Facilities: Assessing the Risks and Providing a Path Forward
- History of US-Soviet/Russian relations: lessons learned (case studies of Russian-American Company in Fort Ross, California, and in Kauai, Hawaii).

Centre russe d'études politiques hosted Trak 1.5, Track 2 and Track 2.5 meetings, which paved the ways to finding solutions of the Iranian nuclear program, improvement of the Russia-U.S. dialogue on arms control and global security and facilitated Swiss and Russian efforts on European security. Russia Confidential contains exclusive analytical materials on international security, international development, foreign and defence policy of Russia and the CIS.

The Centre brings to its members the wealth of knowledge and experience of the leading Russian experts in various areas of international security through its regular meetings and publications.
